"THE BARONET:"

A Story of the Heart."

By HARR TAYLOR.

The motive of the story is that a philosopher, fighting strong prejudices against love and marriage, accomplishes the same feat for love.

in the warm soil of the female nature. The plot arouses the wrath of the rare specimen of womanhood, who by what seems to be unfair means is cut adrift from home and friends. By trials for which love is not a sufficient help, she wins her way to success and fame.

BABY CARRIAGES

A PERFECT FURORE

Was created last week by the great $20 Suit Sale at The Hub. Never before have such Suits been sold for the money. But The Hub isn't done yet. Here is another surprise. Many lots from this $20 sale in which sizes are broken, suits that have heretofore sold at $22 and $25, besides a large line of regular $18 and $20 Suits, 1,150 all told, will tomorrow be bunched together for the greatest effort of the season, and marked, choice of any and all,

$15

The Hub don't make these absurd figures because it's fun, but because at any sacrifice it will not carry any goods over to another season.

EDGEWATER

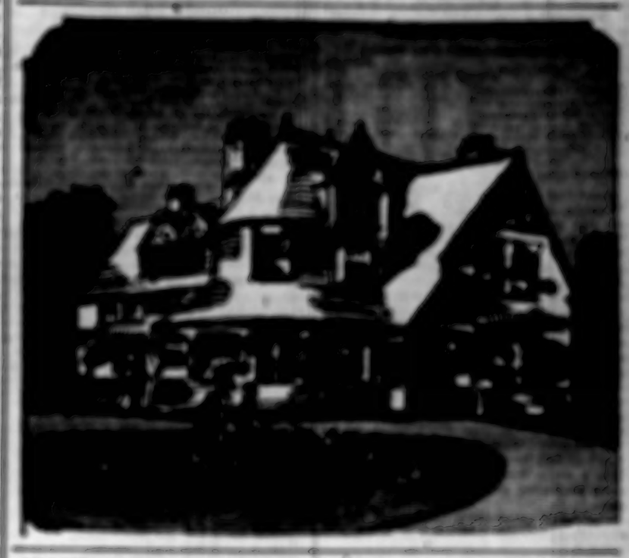
A delightful and healthful suburb on the shores of Lake Michigan, seven miles north of Lincoln Park, reached by Evanston Division, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad.
The following is an illustration of one of the houses:



NOW OPEN AND READY FOR INSPECTION.

Every convenience suggested by modern development has been introduced and no expense spared to make them complete in every detail. These houses were designed and constructed under the supervision of Architect J. L. Silsbee, U. in the intention to have no building inferior to those already completed erected on these premises.

The principal styles of architecture are Queen Anne and Colonial, built in various designs of stone, brick, and wood. The interiors are finished in the most elegant manner and arranged for comfort and convenience. Stairways, halls and dining-rooms are finished in Galloway and wood with oak floors. The fireplaces, mantels, registers, and hard-coated are of Georgia pine, and all finished in hard oil—no glazier being used.

Experience has been taken that the ventilation and plumbing should be scrupulous. The best sanitary provisions have had close attention, and the grounding is being done so as to insure that where the water flows in at basement, which will effectually prevent any overflow on cellars. The water-closets are all ventilated to roof. It is not supposed to be provided with sewer gas.

The walls and ceilings are tinted, Japanese felt work is used in decorations. The hardware and trimmings are high-grade, being in keeping with the houses. The stained glass used was made by Louis Tiffany & Co., of New York.

Electric Incandescent Lights have been introduced in every room, hall, and closet, with a switch that enables the occupant to use any or all the lights at will. The fixtures of various artistic designs were made by one of the leading manufactures.

The grounds are laid out by a competent landscape gardener, who has shown exquisite taste in the arrangement of walks, drives, floral designs, etc.

A large public station, modeled after an English inn, is now being built to accommodate the residents of Edgewater.

A Short Committee Threatens to Leave and Seek a Plea.

The Black Hawks Supposed to Be Headed Eastward, and He Is Said to Have Struck a Trail Leading This Direction—Two Days of the Fun of Miners in Which He Was Robbed—He Is Taken Into Custody—Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—Washington people this afternoon had an unpleasant shudder that any grave belief Guiteau should ever be let loose upon them. The suspicion came through the publication of a story that the police had arrested a supposed lunatic who was threatening to kill President Garfield. Late inquiries about 1:30 o'clock developed a suspicion of graver character than was at first supposed. The man who gave the name of Hazlett, from Troy, is a native of Sweden and says he has been sent to Washington by God to kill Garfield. He says he is to be hung in Springfield, Ill., for some years, and has about three years left, and expects to be a king in Sweden after the event. The man coming to tell the news that he was a messenger and the latter gave him a few days' work. Hazlett then said he wanted to advance for a week in the city for a month, and that he wanted to see the President and others to whom he was to carry the message. He had not completed the adjoining room. He had written on his person to see about the President, and when he was asked to read the letter, he refused, saying that he was going to Washington, but did President himself. Suspicion about the hotel got it out again to Superintendent Brooks, who was requested to remain quiet and Hazlett was requested to leave the hotel and take other quarters. He refused to do so, and then Superintendent Brooks and Detective Hall went to his room and found him packing his valise. He refused to open it, and was told that he was under arrest. He then said he was going to Washington to see the President, and that he had a message from God to him. He was then taken to the police station, and a search of his valise revealed a large knife, a pistol, and a number of letters addressed to the President, Secretary Blaine, Secretary Lincoln, and others. The letters were all sealed, and Hazlett refused to open them. He was then locked up on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He was taken before Judge Snell this morning, and was fined $100 and costs, or sixty days in jail. He was unable to pay the fine, and was committed to the jail.

Interview with the President.

The President has given positive to the following effect: That a sufficient portion of the Secretary's time and personal attention is required in the Treasury Department to prevent any further delay in the transaction of the business of that Department; that the Secretary of the Treasury will not be absent from Washington after July 3, and that he will not be absent from Washington after July 3, and that he will not be absent from Washington after July 3, and that he

Private Property in Land and the Unequal Distribution of Wealth—The Real Ground that Underlies Land Ownership—The Unequal Wages of Skilled Mechanics—Enough Wealth in the Universe at the Privilege of Progress and Poverty.

Memphis Avalanche, July 1.—[Special.]—Rev. W. C. Bailey, pastor of the First Baptist Church, in his sermon this morning, the tendency of which he said was to show that the progress is to increase the number of the former class in the interests of wealth and keep intact the latter class in poverty.

It is still further to increase the numbers of the former class. The rich become richer and richer, while the poor become poorer and poorer. The rich are growing richer and richer, and the poor are growing poorer and poorer. It is as though an immense stone were rolling down a hill, and the rich were on the top of it, and the poor were at the bottom. The rich are getting richer and richer, and the poor are getting poorer and poorer. The rich are getting richer and richer, and the poor are getting poorer and poorer. The rich are getting richer and richer, and the poor are getting poorer and poorer.

This is the phenomenon that he attempts to explain in his book on "Progress and Poverty," for this discovery that—

[illegible]

Under conditions that private property in land produces an unequal distribution of wealth; that is a cause and a condition of modern civilization, the only true remedy suggests itself.

[illegible]

Making the necessary of this remedy, Mr. George further discusses in the sermon ahead of the application by force if necessary.

[illegible]

Mr. George does not favor this violent remedy. He proposes to accomplish the same thing by a process of taxation. He would abolish all taxes on industry and production, and would put the whole burden of taxation upon land values. He would not confiscate land, but would leave it in the hands of its present owners, but would take for the use of the community the annual value of the land, which is created entirely by the growth of population. [illegible] Under this system every man would be compelled to pay into the public treasury the full value of the land which he held for speculation, and would be encouraged to put it to its highest use. [illegible] Under this system every man would be compelled to pay into the public treasury the full value of the land which he held for speculation, and would be encouraged to put it to its highest use.

Assuming the reasonable truth the application of these principles, he argues, to the present condition of affairs, he proceeds to show that the present system is unnatural in the light of the Bible, which is replete with principles of justice and equity. [illegible] Under this system every man would be compelled to pay into the public treasury the full value of the land which he held for speculation, and would be encouraged to put it to its highest use. CHICAGO REAL ESTATE.

A CHICAGO GOOD SERVICE, EVERYWHERE CONSIDERED.

The following is from Cochrane, a Boston Advertising Property Rating Department—an Exchange of Real Property Suggestions. The Increase in Value—Some of the More Important Sales of the Week—The Wholesale Central Depot and the Chamber of Commerce Building.

The real estate market of the last week has served of several features, thereby giving an assurance to many of those that have prevailed in more early spring. The sales that are reported from most of the business of those such activity in the line of country, as compared by dealing that showed fairly well in the aggregate. Some have by no means full their anticipations in those who are after desired business in values, and a great deal of dickering was done in that line. The fact is, there is hardly any one connected with real estate in Chicago who doesn't profess a hope, in entering property within the year. But so far as the transactions of the city Exchanges for such an opinion is that nearly every one, whether of such or that improvement, such and such of late has recently been greatly agitated by lenders in real estate, and especially with

While no conservative observer will seek to rob the various fine property effect to or about Chicago, and even to enable a very fine hope of growth, it is probably also true that no one who has inspected the situation, carefully and without prejudice or unusual hurry, and without attempt to connect the security with elements and prospects in the country any of the elements that are supposed to contribute to that accommodation and power to contribute to that accommodation and power to contribute to that accommodation and power

Comedy and comedians are much less talked about in the east. A person may not be able to name from memory, for a single description, but all those with interests or sympathies in such matters know what they are and their qualities. Comedy-producing institutions in the east, for instance, seem to be confined to the single question whether it is worth the while to attempt to produce it at all. For years there have been only two companies which have made a specialty of comedy, and which have been able to live by it. One of these is that of Augustin Daly, which has been in existence for a number of years, and has been known as the home of Ada Rehan, Mrs. Gilbert, John Drew, James Lewis, and other favorites. The other is that of Mr. Charles Frohman, which has been known as the home of Maude Adams, Virginia Harned, and other favorites. Both companies have been known as the homes of comedy, and both have been in the habit of producing it with great success. Both companies have been known as the homes of comedy, and both have been in the habit of producing it with great success. GREAT ACTORS AS CRITICS.

CURRENT COMMENT ON H. IRVING AND ANNIE RUSSELL.

A Discussion That Succeeds to the Proportions of a Controversy—Mr. Irving Takes a Severe Shaking Up at the Hands of the Dramatic Critic of the Saturday Review—Miss Russell Criticises Mr. Irving's Reading of "Lesbia"—Last Season of the Lincoln Park Musical Association.—Musical Notes.

Those who have read the recently published letters of H. Cholmondeley-Pennell on the art of acting—the essay of Joe Jefferson in the March No. 1 and that of the latter in the March No. 2 and that of the latter in the Forum—looking for those could find nothing in Miss Russell's criticism of Mr. Irving's acting and make a great mistake. That is a discussion of English methods and English conditions and environments of work.

If Mr. Cholmondeley-Pennell (his article is not remarkable for its lucidity of expression) has authorities in the history of literature, who would advocate talking from acting and make a greatly mistake—that is, unfortunately, quite too true and devoid of inspiration. Only a few years ago an English reviewer was published of Donald's undressed readers, "Tennyson for a Comedian," and to this Mr. Irving contributed a preface to explain the personality of the Poet-Laureate's readings, but the result that the question, artistically as it was presented, was still but a paradox after all. In the present discussion the English have overtaken the position that to have both the qualities would be perfect, but Mr. Irving was not required to exhibit the qualities to others. "The esoteric quality" upon Mr. Irving is a passage having particular reference to Edmund Kean, in the course of the criticism of the actor's art in the essay of Hazlitt, and Hazlitt is a critic who is always worth reading. Hazlitt's criticism of Kean is a criticism of the actor's art in the essay of Hazlitt, and Hazlitt is a critic who is always worth reading. At the Theatres.

"Romeo and Juliet" has been played for a week by Mr. A. M. Palmer's company at Mr. Palmer's, the performance being fairly good, due to Hazel's brilliant play. A combined view of the excellence of that dramatic strength, and a deep effort with an unfavorable cast is about such an unfavorable opinion. That bit of work that will stand out in memory as the performance of an old and by Mr. Coolidge as Friar Lawrence. Miss Hazel's Juliet is a creditable performance, but although it has many good points, it is not a satisfactory one. Miss Hazel's voice is not a good one, and it is not used to good advantage. Her gestures are not graceful, and her facial expression is not always appropriate. She is, however, a very much closer to the character than she was last season.
